Does mandatory sex education reduce teenage pregnancies?

Professor David Paton

Turning the tide: How to get a hearing from a hostile media

Robin Aitken

David Paton is Professor of Industrial Economics and Associate Dean for Faculty and Resources at Nottingham University Business School. The economics of teenage pregnancy is one of his research interests and he has had articles on the subject published in several peer-reviewed journals including the Journal of Health Economics, Social Science and Medicine, Demography and Education and Health.

Robin Aitken is a former BBC reporter and journalist who spent 25 years working across all levels within the Corporation, from local radio to the Radio 4 Today programme. He is the author of The Noble Liar: How and Why the BBC Distorts the News to Promote a Liberal Agenda. In 2014 he was awarded the MBE for his work with the Oxford Foodbank which he co-founded in 2009.
